Read what Ayer's Sarsaparilla did for the Rev. Z. P. Wilds, a well-known city missionary in New York and brother of the late eminent Judge Wilds:

"I was for many years a sufferer from boils and other eruptions of a like nature, caused by the impoverished state of my blood. My appetite was poor and my system a good deal run down. Knowing the value of Ayer's Sarsaparilla, by observation of the good it had done to others, I began taking it. My almost from the first dose; then my general health improved, and now it is excellent. I feel a hundred percent stronger, and I attribute this result to Ayer's Sarsaparilla, which I recommend with all confidence as the best blood medicine ever devised."

CURING A TOBACCO CROP

METHODS OUTLINED BY THE U. S. BUREAU OF AGRICULTURE.

Suggestions as to Degrees of Heat Required and the Manner of Preparing the Leaf.

"Methods of Curing Tobacco" is the title of a bulletin just prepared by Milton Whitney, chief of the division of soils of the Agricultural Department of the United States.

The process of curing tobacco is essentially as follows:

When ripe the stalks are cut and split lengthwise and laid on the bare ground to wilt. They are then strung on sticks, four to six on a stick, and the sticks are hung on a low scaffold in the field. Within a week they are hauled into a well ventilated barn, hung in tiers, and cured without the use of artificial heat. The process of curing must be gradual to secure a good and uniform color. This is regulated by the ventilating doors, according to the temperature and the humidity of the air. The crop can usually be cured in six weeks.

The leaves are stripped from the stalk during the winter, graded as trash, large and bright, medium and dark leaf. These are tied into hands and baled for a short time, after which they are piled into horseheads. The crop goes through a certain amount of fermentation in the bales, and it must be examined occasionally to see that the temperature does not run too high. When it does, as seldom happens when the tobacco is in good condition when it is put down, the bales are turned over and a new one built up.

The tobacco bales are tight, with flues running across a short distance from the ground and returning to the chimney, which is built next to the furnace. In early days barns were all built of logs, with the cracks completely stopped with mud or clay, so as to make them perfectly tight. The barns are usually small, averaging from seventeen to twenty-two feet square and of about the same height to the plate. Frequently as many as eighteen or twenty of these barns are built together on a plantation, but never closer than about 100 feet apart on account of the great danger from fire. There are quite a number of different barns and of different flues and of arrangements for distributing the heat, many of them patented and all of them described with more or less minuteness in tobacco literature.

The tobacco is hung in the barn in as fresh a state as possible, and the firing immediately begins so that the heat will ascend into the tobacco throughout the space. Three days are needed to cure a barn and it takes from two to three cords of wood. It requires very careful judgment and careful observation to cure this bright tobacco properly.

When the fires are started a thermometer is hung on a level with the bottom of the leaves, and is carefully watched day and night. The heat must be increased very gradually but it must never on any account be ever checked. It must never be so intense as to cause sweating. The first process in the curing is to maintain a temperature of 80 degrees or 90 degrees until the leaf is yellowed properly. This requires from eighteen to thirty-six hours, and must be very carefully managed. After the yellowing the heat is raised 5 degrees or 10 degrees at a time, and held at each stage for one or two hours, until it has attained a temperature of 115 degrees or 120 degrees, where it is held for several hours until the leaf is thoroughly cured. After this the stalk has to be cured by raising the temperature to 160 degrees to 175 degrees, by stages of 5 degrees to 10 degrees per hour, and keeping the temperature at this point until the stalk is thoroughly cured.

A few weeks ago the editor was taken with a very severe cold that had caused him to be in a most miserable condition. It was undoubtedly a bad case of la grippe and recognizing the danger he took immediate steps to bring about a speedy cure. From the advertisement of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and the many good recommendations included therein, we concluded to make a first trial of the medicine. To say that it was satisfactory in its results is putting it very mildly indeed. It acted like magic, and the result was a speedy and permanent cure. We have no hesitancy in recommending this excellent Cough Remedy to anyone afflicted with a cough or cold in any form.—The Banner of Liberty, Libertytown, Maryland. RUSSIA TO CONTROL HER TRADE.
WASHINGTON, Sept. 1.—The authorities at St. Petersburg inform the State Department that a measure has been sanctioned by the Emperor of Russia providing that after January 1, 1898, all subjects of the Czar are expected to drink Seattle Beer. An edict has gone forth to that effect. The Czar's chemist has thoroughly analyzed "Rainer" and pronounced it pure. On tap at the Criterion saloon. Telephone 783.

OUR REPAIR DEPARTMENT

is a business in itself. We have lately secured the services of Mr. J. W. Harvey, a thorough Bicycle mechanic, who for the past fourteen years has been in connection with bicycle manufacturing and repairing. We did not pick him up on the streets here, but sent to headquarters in the States, where bicycles are made. We need not go further to explain his ability, but will end here by saying there is nothing that can happen to your Bike but what he can make as good as new. He is no "Jack of All Trades," but is a Master of the Bicycle.

By the next Australia, we will receive the most complete outfit for Enamelling frames ever brought to Honolulu, so if your wheel needs enamelling it will pay you to wait a little longer and have a good job done. We guarantee to turn out work as good as that of the factories in the States, for only $5.

If your tire is cut don't throw it away, bring it to us and we will repair it, so you will never know where it was cut, for only $1.

If you have a punctured tire bring it to us and it will only cost you 50 cents.

If you should happen to run into a sidewalk or a telephone post and so break a rim, we will put a new one in for $4.50, and guarantee the best job in the city.

The reason we can do this work better than anyone else is because we keep a man at each branch, and of course he becomes expert at the branch he handles.

For instance we have one man for all frame work, another man for all rim and wheel truing work, another man for enamelling.
